USING THE VIDEODISC PLAYERS

- All the videodisc players are connected to a TV monitor. You will need to turn on power for the TV (usually front lower right corner of TV) and on the videodisc player (usually right corner of videodisc player).
- The TVs are generally set to show pictures from the videodisc players; hopefully you will not need to do anything but insert a videodisc in the player. If you have trouble getting a picture, ask an instructor for help.
- The videodisc players have 2 remotes that you can use. One is a barcode reader; the other is a number keypad type remote.
- Most of the videodiscs have a companion notebook on the bookshelf beside the discs. The notebooks have the reference numbers and barcodes for each image or movie on the videodisc.
- You must have the correct videodisc in the player in order to use the barcodes or numbers to view images on that disc.

To put a disc in the player
- Hit the Stop/Open/Close button on the player. The tray will come out (if you were playing a disc, you will have to hit the button once to stop and a second time to eject.)
- Place the videodisc in the tray. Be careful to handle the disc by the edges so that they do not get dirty or scratched.
- Gently push the tray a little to start it in.
- Hit the Play button on the videodisc player.

To use the number keypad
- Hit the DISP button, and the hit the Chap/Frame button to enter Frame mode in order to see numbers on the upper left hand corner of the screen.
- Punch in the number beside the image you wish to see (usually 5 digits).
- Hit “Search”.
- The image should appear. You can also scroll through images using the Still/Step Rev/Fwd buttons on the remote. This will usually show you other similar images on most discs.
- Remember to point the remote at the videodisc player when entering numbers or pressing buttons. The remote might not function properly when pointed at the TV.

To use the barcode reader
- Point the barcode reader at the barcode beside the image you wish to see in the notebook and push the Read button. Listen for the unit to beep.
- Point the barcode reader at the videodisc player (usually the lower right hand corner), and press the Send button. Listen for the unit to beep.
- If it is working you will see a red light when reading. Ask an instructor for help if you are having problems.
